

Grammy Award Winner Eartha Releases Ink Dry Blue And Performs At The House Of Blues Foundation

By Erica Steele

Dated: Sep 30, 2010

Grammy Award winning Eartha returns with her third release Ink Dry Blue and performs at the House of Blues VIP Foundation Room on October 8, 2010 at 10pm.

In 2003, at the 45th Annual Grammy Awards, Eartha garnered two Grammy nominations and a win with her sophomore release Sidebars. This followed the success of her maxi Single CD Love Jones, which shot to #2 on Billboard's Hot Dance Breakouts. Love Jones was the single from her debut CD This I Know in 2000. All Music Guide's Jonathan Widran said of This I Know, "If this impressive recording is any indication, Eartha stands poised to become a powerful presence..."

After years of recording and producing music in the underground indie circles, the 5'11" sultry raspy-voice contralto returns with Ink Dry Blue, an eclectic blend of rock alternative, in which she co-wrote all songs and played all instruments. As with her previous releases, Eartha successfully forwards a new presentation that offers a remarkable experience. Rolling Out Magazine said, "Many artists have begun infusing all types of sounds into their music...Eartha is leading the way." In the mold of rare self-contained artists, Eartha is intricately involved in every aspect of her music. She writes, arranges, and plays saxophone, keyboards, drums, bass, and electric guitar. Suited with overflowing creativity, dexterity, rich influences, a striking image, and intense energy, Eartha's presentation and ability to tell a story with music is unparalleled.
